DATA

Survey of Islamic elites. I have collected a stratified random sample of over 1000 elites in the Indonesian Islamic institutions of Nahdlatul Ulama, Muhammadiyah and Persatuan Islam. This is the only survey of some of the world’s largest and oldest Islamic organizations.

Campaign images. During the elections of 2009-2011 I collected digital photos of over 4,000 political advertisements from 15 Indonesian provinces. Because each ad uses a unique combination of written and visual symbols demarcating the candidate’s ethnic and religious identity, the data enables us to explain the deployment of political identity (with Colm Fox).

Religious edicts. I have collected over 1,500 religious edicts (fatwas) from Nahdlatul Ulama, Muhammadiyah, Persis and Majelis Ulama Indonesia. These fatwas are used to map the changing beliefs of Islamic organizations over time and in comparative perspective.
